

WE ARE LOOKING FOR A BRAND ACTIVATION MANAGER

Visual communication agency Amphion – pumping up fuel for brands since 1997 - is looking for a natural born leader to fill a unique position in our company. We are a fast growing, non-traditional agency with several high profile clients in our much-coveted portfolio. Our black gold flows from the pumps in Antwerp and Brussels (Vilvoorde), with the Brussels office being the main base for this job position.

REQUIREMENTS

We are looking for a senior individual to take up the role of “brand activation manager”. This means overseeing strategy, creation, implementation & follow-up of several of our (prestigious, high-profile) projects. You know where to drill for a good idea and have the leadership capabilities to get (and keep) the pumps running. You can put together a nifty PowerPoint presentation with the swiftness of a fuel injection engine, and sit out meetings with the endurance of a Diesel.

PROFILE

- As a true senior you like to be in charge of a project. You keep the motor running and make sure your team doesn't run out of juice. An idea you turn into a plan, and you have more plans coming together than Hannibal from The A-Team.
- You inspire a unit to give their best on the frontlines of graphic design and marketing. You know how to rally the troops when they are under deadline-distress, and lead them to their finest hour. You are their chill instructor, not a drill instructor. You wear your team's awards pinned to your chest like Medals of Honor.
- You have excellent consumer insight and feel.
- You have earned your stripes, preferably within the agency or marketing world (at least 8 years) and have learned how to manage international brands, together with their brand managers.
- Aesthetics and design are two of the main reasons you are in this business, and you don't mind explaining this 20 times when you defend a project.
- You have enough technical expertise and common sense to challenge and manage third party suppliers to get that crazy idea of yours to work.
- You speak and write 3 languages: Dutch, French and English.
